BA MARKETING MANAGEMENT

Module Choice Guide for Level 6
2019/20

This should be read in conjunction with information on the Campus Registry Blackboard site and on your Course Blackboard site.

We try to ensure all details are correct at the time of publishing, module details and availability may be subject to change.

Westminster Business School
(March 2019)
ACTION POINTS:

1. Read this Module Choice Guide.

2. Attend the Module Fair on Wednesday 13 March 2019, 2-4 pm, MG14 and MG28.

3. Think about the long term career you want to have in addition to the job you want to do immediately after graduating, you also need to think about your academic strengths. Your Personal Tutor and the Career Development Team can help with your decisions.

4. You are required to pass all 120 credits at Level 4, 5 and 6. Please bear this in mind when selecting your options. Decide on your Level 6 option choices and plan your programme to completion of your degree. You need to seek advice if you do not achieve this.

5. Please be aware there are limited spaces on modules, and students are registered on a first come first served basis, therefore it is advisable to register your option choices online as soon as possible. It is also advisable to have a second choice in mind in case your first choice module is not available to you.

6. Check you are absolutely sure you have identified the options you really do want to be studying in 2019/20.

7. Please Note - once you hit the ‘submit’ button you cannot change your selection at a later date.

8. Register your modules online from Wednesday 3 April and before Thursday 18 April 2019. You will receive further details of how to make module choices via email prior to 3 April. Please ensure you check your University email regularly.

Your Course

You must attempt and pass 6 modules (total of 120 credits) at Level 6 in order to graduate. These are:

- Course core modules: 3 compulsory modules
- Pathway core module: 1 pathway core module
- Pathway option modules: you must choose 1 and may choose 2
- Elective: you may choose 1
Elective option

Your elective option may be selected from:
- your course options; or
- the WBS Level 6 College Electives; or
- from the Westminster Electives.

You are strongly advised to select your elective module from those on offer in your degree or in the WBS Level 6 Electives as this allows you to either:
- increase your depth of knowledge in your specialism; or
- widen the scope of your specialist degree.

Polylang: The University provides a programme of graded modules in 8 different languages designed for non-language degree students. There are various Levels of each language so, in theory, you may start a language from scratch or continue with an existing language. Most students taking a language take one module in that language in each year of the degree. If you have taken a language module in the first and second year, there is no problem in continuing or dropping it.

Are the module learning outcomes delivered, assessed or supported through an arrangement with an organisation(s) other than the University of Westminster? No.

This module provides a systematic understanding and appreciation of the principles and practices underlying global financial accounting and the key accounting issues faced by multinational companies. The diversity in global financial accounting will be discussed and the arguments for the international accounting standards convergence project critically evaluated. Accounting issues related to foreign currency transactions and translation, business combinations, segment reporting, transfer pricing and wider corporate governance, faced by multinational companies will be discussed. In addition, current developments in international accounting will be examined. An appreciation of the practical application of the theory, knowledge and understanding gained, will be made through reference to industry cases. Learning activities include directed lectures, seminars and workshops. The workshops and seminars will be used to engage students in debate and use of sources from real-life companies and contemporary events to illustrate international financial accounting in practice.

Learning outcomes

1. Critically evaluate accounting issues that are related to multinational companies and discuss the arguments for and against global accounting standards.
2. Critique theoretical frameworks and relate the international accounting standards to the categories of assets, liabilities, recognition, measurement, and needs of user groups.
3. Engage in debate in a professional manner, using communication to persuade and convince the global convergence of accounting standards.
4. Challenge received opinion and use own criteria and judgement in areas of global financial reporting standards.
5. Critically evaluate current research using own judgment of ethical, political and legal values.
6. Critically evaluate arguments, assumptions, abstract concepts and data (that may be incomplete), to make own judgements in areas related to the accounting for foreign currency and other financial reporting issues.
7. Formulate a complex argument within a theoretical and contextual framework.

Are the module learning outcomes delivered, assessed or supported through an arrangement with an organisation(s) other than the University of Westminster? No.

Summary of module content: The module will examine legal and regulatory controls on the marketing of goods and services. Consideration will be given to issues arising from the application of consumer legislation and policy making as they apply to marketing problems within the organisation. The module seeks to build on the students’ knowledge of contract and tort law and consider current legislation including the Consumer Protection Act 1987, Consumer Rights Bill 2014 and cases dealing with consumer protection issues such as product liability, misrepresentation and unfair trading regulations. Module content includes civil and criminal law as related to business transactions, an appreciation of the institutional framework, voluntary and pressure groups and their impact on consumer protection and a general examination of proposals for enhancing consumer protection.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this module, the student will be able to:

1. Describe and evaluate the law relating to the marketing and sale of consumer goods and services.
2. Explain and evaluate the remedies available to consumers in contract and tort, reflecting the differing approaches between common law and statute.
3. Describe and evaluate the main state and self-regulatory institutions at both local, regional, national and European level relating to the area of consumer protection.
4. Use research skills to evaluate the body of consumer protection available to consumers and traders in a critical manner.

Summary of module content: This module is tied to a one year period of professional work experience within an organisation in an area of your choosing. On this module you will form a deeper understanding of a particular business area by combining practical work experience with precise and relevant theoretical study and reflection on their learning throughout the placement. This is augmented by feedback from your employer about your work and completion of a project for the employing organisation. This will lead you to a more informed and profound understanding of the particular business sector and related topic and of some of the issues related to managing people.

Learning outcomes

On successful completion of the module, a student will be able to:
1. Critically evaluate processes, practices and relationships in the employing organisation
2. Identify issues of key significance to the organization
3. Execute a suitable work-based project based on the goals of their organization and their work placement. This will involve comparing and contrasting the needs of the employing organization in line with the student's own degree studies and career plans.
4. Demonstrate analytical, problem solving, and decision making skills
5. Produce a clear, logical and coherent report linked to appropriate business models and underpinned by academic literature.
6. Reflect on the learning and development that has arisen from undertaking the project, and the placement, including their role as an employee and their response to feedback.

Are the module learning outcomes delivered, assessed or supported through an arrangement with an organisation(s) other than the University of Westminster?  No

Summary of module content: Summary of module content: The recent crisis in financial markets has exposed serious flaws in management forecasting methods, most notably the failure to anticipate and deal with the consequences of economic collapse. This quantitative module provides an insight into to the major methods of forecasting. In addition to considering the theoretical aspects of the methods, students will gain practical experience of applying some of the most commonly used procedures to real life data. This will be achieved by using on line data such as that offered by the Bloomberg Financial Markets Suite. Software will be used for data analysis.

Learning outcomes

On successful completion of this module students will be able to:
1. Critically evaluate the relative merits of the major forecasting techniques.
2. Critically describe and evaluate in depth, the main aims and properties of the major forecasting procedures.
3. Apply appropriate methods to solve relevant numerical and theoretical problems.
4. Undertake tasks that working economists and business analysts would be expected to perform in the real world, by managing new data and subsequently analysing it without guidance, using an appropriate statistical forecasting technique and relevant computer software (Minitab).
5. Critically appraise the role of forecasting in the planning process and the links to wider decision-making activities in business.

Are the module learning outcomes delivered, assessed or supported through an arrangement with an organisation(s) other than the University of Westminster? No.

Summary of module content: Over the past three decades financial markets have undergone significant technological and regulatory changes that have made financial instruments and services more complex and sophisticated. Additionally, changes in demographics, politics and the economy, have shifted towards a consumer society, that places high value on possessions. Further, the moves from the welfare state towards liberalization and financial self-reliance have made the making of prudent personal financial decisions very challenging. It has thus become crucial for individuals to develop greater financial capabilities if they want to ensure a decent standard of living and achieve their life goals. The prime objective of this module is to equip students with the necessary knowledge and skill required for them to make sound and informed personal financial decisions as well as put them on the first step of developing a career as a personal financial planner.

Learning outcomes

By the end of the module the student will be able to:

1. Develop appropriate criteria to evaluate options within a range of situations in conditions of limited knowledge or uncertainty.
2. Critically evaluate arguments, assumptions, abstract concepts and data (that may be incomplete), to make own judgements.
3. Challenge received opinion and use own criteria and judgement.
4. Formulate a complex argument within a theoretical and contextual framework.

Are the module learning outcomes delivered, assessed or supported through an arrangement with an organisation(s) other than the University of Westminster? No.

Summary of module content: This module draws on students’ lived experience of culture and the research on cultural differences. It provides a useful base for those finding themselves working in multicultural settings, and also for those managing in those settings, including in a HRM role. It stimulates reflection and discussions, leading to greater self-understanding of our own preferences and how some of these are in part culturally derived, alongside a greater understanding of other views.

Learning outcomes

By the end of the module the successful student will be able to:

1. Articulate the importance of culture and the significance of cultural differences and be able to start to use theoretical models to conceptualise culture;
2. Assess how their own culture may have influenced their values, beliefs and behaviours in organisations;
3. Identify and evaluate some of the major organisational and management models and research findings that have influenced our understanding of cultural differences and start to critically assess these using some social science/humanities models
4. Formulate some of the implications of cultural differences for managing people in organisations, for example, in relation to expectations around structure, management, communication, working in teams.
5. Critique theoretical frameworks and apply to practice;
6. Critically examine contemporary issues influencing business thinking and behaviour;
7. Understand people management approaches and its impact on organisational behaviour;
8. Reflect on outcomes, processes, the experience of others and personal experience to improve performance;

Are the module learning outcomes delivered, assessed or supported through an arrangement with an organisation(s) other than the University of Westminster? No.

Summary of module content: This module is about critically exploring some of the most important similarities and differences in the context of management and organisation across different countries and regions of the world. It seeks to provide a broad conceptual framework to analyse such variety in view of the institutional -as opposed to cultural- context in which management and organisation take place. This comparative framework draws on the distinction between Liberal and Coordinated market economies - or Anglo-Saxon and Rhine models respectively including the US, UK and Canada on the one hand, and Germany, The Netherlands, Scandinavian countries and Japan on the other. The module aims to systematically analyse - and critically evaluate - main similarities and differences across selected countries and regions in terms of the nature of firms, national models of corporate governance; national systems of employment relations; national innovation systems; societal systems of production; and socio-economic outcomes.

Learning outcomes

By the end of the module, the successful student will be able to:

1. Critically analyse, explain and evaluate different approaches to the study of comparative international management.

2. Analyse similarities and differences in the institutional context (nature of the firm, corporate governance, employment relations, innovation and production systems, socio-economic outcomes) in which management and organisation take place across countries and regions of the world.

3. Explain similarities and differences in the institutional context (nature of the firm, corporate governance, employment relations, innovation and production systems, socio-economic outcomes) in which management and organisation take place across countries and regions of the world.

4. Critically evaluate similarities and differences in the institutional context (nature of the firm, corporate governance, employment relations, innovation and production systems, socio-economic outcomes) in which management and organisation take place across countries and regions of the world.

Summary of module content An excellent module for anyone considering a career in Digital Marketing, or the wider marketing communications industry. It creates an opportunity for students to participate in appraising the on line presence of brands and to identify the underlying campaign strategies. You will carry out your own research, learn to reflect and give feedback to your peers and write succinctly - a critical skill required in industry.

Learning outcomes
1. Critically evaluate the role and use of data to create insight and the relevant legal and ethical implications.
2. Critically evaluate the range of digital, interactive and social media in relation to customer acquisition and retention strategies in a range of business contexts.
3. Understand and apply digital marketing theory to solve cases using a range of media in different contexts.
4. Research a range of brands, analyse marketing data, draw conclusions and insights and make recommendations.
5. Critically appraise the online presence of brands and identify underlying marketing theory.
6. Reflect on students own contribution and the contribution of others and be able to communicate ideas and proposals with justification and confidence in written formats.
