

English Language and Linguistics Research Seminars 2019/2020

Seminars are held in 309 Regent Street W1B 2HW, Room UG04 at 16:00

Semester 1

Wednesday 9 October 2019

Megan Tiddeman, University of Westminster

Before spaghetti: three examples of Anglo-Italian language contact in the fifteenth century and why they are important

Wednesday 23 October 2019

Christina Kim, University of Kent

Structural convergence in dialogue between native and non-native speakers

Wednesday 6 November 2019

Victoria Howard, University of Nottingham

'Old codgers' and 'honey buns': humour in Queen's Speech Debates in the House of Lords

Wednesday 20 November 2019

John Gallagher, University of Leeds

Taking the polyglot perspective: urban multilingualism in 16th- and 17th-century England

Wednesday 4 December 2019

Brook Bolander, Monash University

A heuristic to study language and the regularisation of transnationalism

Semester 2

Wednesday 29 January 2020

Christiana Themistocleous, University of Reading

From public to digital spaces: linguistic Landscape mobilities of the 2017 Unite Cyprus Now peace protests

Wednesday 12 February 2020

Kathryn Allan, UCL

The semantics of loanwords in Early Modern English

Wednesday 26 February 2020

Patricia Kolaiti, University of Brighton

Literature and art as a cognitive object: towards a novel mentalistic theory of literature and art

Wednesday 11 March 2020

Dominik Vajn, University of Central Lancashire

From interrogation to confession: using information analysis to detect false confessions

Wednesday 25 March 2019

Fraser Dallachy, University of Glasgow

Clone your own thesaurus: creating a historical thesaurus by semi-automated means