Information Society (DMC)

Module Code: 5MEST012W

Level 5

Semester 1

Location: Harrow

UK Credit Value: 20

Equivalent Credit Value: US Credits 4 /
ECTS credits 10

Level of English required for non-native English speakers: IELTS equivalent of 6.5

The aim of this module is the provision of intellectual skills for analysing economics and politics in the information society. The module engages with key public policy debates surrounding the rise of digital media and communication in relation to issues such as freedom of expression, privacy and copyright as well as key debates that relate to the broader economic and political context of the information society. It provides an introduction to information society studies and how to critically analyse media, knowledge, the economy, and policy in the information society. To enable students to critically engage with these debates, the module also provides a firm economic grounding. Therefore the module combines economic and policy analysis, with the former underpinning the latter. It introduces students to both mainstream and critical perspectives on the economics and politics of the information society and digital media. It is taught through a combination of lectures, seminar discussions, presentations, and class exercises.

Journalism - Practical

News Features Comment: Reporting & Writing in a Multi-Platform World

Module Code: 4JRNL002W

Level 4

Semester 1

Location: Harrow

UK Credit Value: 20

Equivalent Credit Value: US Credits 4 / ECTS credits 10*

Level of English required for non-native English speakers: IELTS equivalent of 6.5

This module is an introduction to core journalism skills students will use wherever they end up working in the media. It focuses on research, reporting, writing and storytelling. The demands of particular platforms are considered – the differences between print, broadcast and online for example – but overall the module focuses on similarities across formats and on story types and genres that work across platforms. Students learn how to identify and find news stories, how to research them and how to deal with official sources. They develop interviewing skills and learn how to work with press offices and PRs. Lessons cover online research and fieldwork. The core of the module will focus on writing – from short form news to longer features and comment pieces. Students will be encouraged to link the work they do with the skills they gain on the Semester 2 module, Digital First. A synoptic assessment on that module will test the storytelling and writing skills they gain here.

Introduction to Journalism

Module Code: 4JRNL001W

Level 4

Semester 1

Location: Harrow

UK Credit Value: 20

Equivalent Credit Value: US Credits 4 /
ECTS credits 10

Level of English required for non-native English speakers: IELTS equivalent of 6.5

This module introduces students to the principles and practices of journalism and the various roles and responsibilities of journalists. Students learn about the news media landscape in the UK and across the world, with a particular focus on technological change and how this has affected traditional organisations, publications and channels. The key aim of the module is to build students' multimedia literacy, to help them begin to consume news and journalism as a professional media creative rather than as a simple consumer. Students are also introduced to media law and the various codes that attempt to define ethical journalistic practice. At the end of the module students are encouraged to think about the kind of journalism they want to practice in the future, developing in the process a career/personal development plan they will refer back to as they progress on the course.

Level 5

UK Credit Value: 20

Semester 1

Equivalent Credit Value: US Credits 4 /
ECTS credits 10

Pre-requisite: active visual art practice such as photography, painting, film/video, or sculpture.

Examines lens-based media including photography, film and digital imaging, to develop a critical understanding of the way that representation and its associated technologies shape historical and contemporary ideas of subjectivity. It examines Cartesian notions of the self, and the basis of these ideas in linear perspective models. Other theoretical models, such as Lacanian and post-Lacanian theories of the Gaze, are also used to consider the ways in which identity is structured through visual representation. These ideas are re-thought with reference to more recent work on affect, embodiment, and mechanized vision.
