Global Governance and the State

Module Code: 4PIRS004W Level 4 Semester 2

Location: Regent UK Credit Value: 20 Equivalent Credit Value: US Credits 4 /

ECTS credits 10*

The notion of the state as a sovereign actor is being challenged by global and regional integration, and national fragmentation; processes, which may undermine the state's capacity to govern. Global governance implies a need to govern, make decisions and act collectively given the rise in global challenges, such as war, injustice, poverty, development, crime, terrorism, and environmental degradation. The module explores the opportunities for and effectiveness of global governance, including international organisations. The study of global governance is highly relevant to all as 'citizens of the world'.

The Politics of Killing

Module Code: 5PIRS003W Level 5 Semester 2

Location: Regent UK Credit Value: 20 Equivalent Credit Value: US Credits 4 /

ECTS credits 10*

Under what circumstances is killing lawful and permissible? This module considers the politics of killing and the response of the Westphalian state system to 'life and death' matters within diverse political settings. The module examines how killing has been an important part of state-making practices and the ways in which territorial conceptions of sovereignty have established war-making as an integral part of the modernising narrative of nations and nationalism. The module will consider genocidal politics, gendercide and foeticide, reproductive rights, pandemics and global health, targeted killings and political assassinations, capital punishment and the ethics of warfare. The module is structured to provide an opportunity for students to be actively engaged with questions of political responsibility and global citizenship in negotiating themes of death, violence and killing in world politics.

Assessment: Coursework (20%), Presentation (20%), Essay (60%)

*All transcripts are issued in UK credits.

Global Security

Module Code: 5PIRS007W Level 5 Semester 2

Location: Regent UK Credit Value: 20 Equivalent Credit Value: US Credits 4 /

ECTS credits 10*

The module seeks to introduce second-year undergraduate students to the study of concepts and practices of global security. The module encourages students to think beyond the traditional divide between international and domestic politics by considering global security as it plays out along a continuum of global and local spaces. Far from being exclusive to sovereign states, security concerns and aspirations have become global just as the practices of humanitarian intervention they inspire. At the same time, today more than ever, these are sustained by local practices and reflected in the very fabric of our everyday experience. The module will thus look at contemporary security at the level of the international, the global and the local. It will be divided in three parts. In the first part, students are introduced to traditional understandings of global security from the point of view of the 'international' paradigms of realism and liberalism and the practices of inter-state war and international cooperation. The second part uses more critical approaches to analyse security from a global, rather than international perspective - global practices and infrastructures of insecurity will be analysed by drawing on concepts such as securitisation, emancipation and circulation. The third part will use a more topological lens to think about global security in local spaces - from urban warfare to the securitisation of the built environment, to spaces of exception. The module offers students the chance to build on the knowledge aquired in their first year and develop key critical skills in the analysis of contemporary global politics with reference to the prevalent forms violence and insecurity in the XXI century.

Middle East Politics

Module Code: 5PIRS010W Level 5 Semester 2

Location: Regent UK Credit Value: 20 Equivalent Credit Value: US Credits 4 /

ECTS credits 10*

This module explores the politics of the modern Middle East, focusing on key themes that have shaped the region since the end of the colonial period. Attention is given to ideological trends in the Arab world, such as Arab nationalism and radical Islam, to ongoing violence and conflict in the region, to identity construction, and to areas of particular interest such as gender, human rights and relations between the Arab world and the West. Each theme will be illustrated by the use of case studies. Specific regions or states will also be examined in detail, such as Turkey, Iran, the Gulf, North Africa and Palestine/Israel.

Assessment: Essay (50%), Coursework (30%), Coursework (20%)

Political Economy of Development

Module Code: 5PIRS011W Level 5 Semester 2

Location: Regent UK Credit Value: 20 Equivalent Credit Value: US Credits 4 /

ECTS credits 10***

This module focuses on the thinking, concepts and methodologies that influence development practice in the 21st century. In doing so, students examine the ideologies and global institutions of governance that shape political economies in the developing world. We analyse the ways in which postcolonial countries have been incorporated into the world economy and in turn shaped it, how this has affected their economies, politics and society, and how they respond to these influences. We will assess past and current prospects of industrialisation, manufacturing and agriculture in the global south, with a particular focus on the political economy of food, labour and natural resources. Finally, students will examine the growing importance of 'financialisation' in development and the changing dynamics of power.

Assessment: Coursework (50%), Essay (50%)

Doing Political Research: Project Management in

the Social Sciences

Module Code: 5PIRS018W Level 5 Semester 2

Location: Regent UK Credit Value: 20 Equivalent Credit Value: US Credits 4 /

ECTS credits 10*

An introduction to approaches, methods and processes used in social science research. The module covers the various steps of doing research, from project design through to data analysis and presentation, in relation to both the academic dissertation and professional report. It discusses the requirement for ethics and integrity in the conduct of research. Consideration is also given to the contribution of research to knowledge, policy and public discourse, and the role of the researcher in public life.

*All transcripts are issued in UK credits.

ECTS credits 10*

This module considers the international dimensions of ethics and how these can be understood through contemporary developments in global politics. It examines how ethical judgements are critical to our understanding of international politics and considers the ways in which ethical frameworks involve important questions of political judgement at the local, national and global level. The emphasis is on the practical dimensions of ethical judgement in international relations, including questions of political violence, terrorism, climate change and international environmental politics, war and peace, LGBT politics, gender violence, globalisation and global inequality. Students will work both individually and collaboratively in examining the tensions between 'order' and 'justice' within the global space(s) of world politics.

Humanitarian Intervention and International Relations

Module Code: 6PIRS010W Level 6 Semester 2

Location: Regent UK Credit Value: 20 Equivalent Credit Value: US Credits 4 /

ECTS credits 10*

"Humanitarian intervention" is an issue of unique importance which continues to be one of the dominant controversies of our time. Key events in the post-Cold War era, from the 1994 genocide in Rwanda to the 2011 intervention in Libya, have generated often highly divisive debate regarding the right and responsibility of the international community to "save strangers". This module will examine the history of humanitarian intervention, its moral and philosophical basis and the primary sources of contestation such as its legal status, the question of legitimate authority, and the balance between order and justice.

Special Topic in Politics and International Relations

Module Code: 6PIRS018W Level 6 Semester 2

Location: Regent UK Credit Value: 20 Equivalent Credit Value: US Credits 4 /

ECTS credits 10*

Each year the Department of Politics and International Relations will offer an advanced module at Level 6 that addresses a specialist topic or contemporary theme within the discipline of Politics, International Relations and/or Development Studies. The special topic module is primarily aimed at those students who wish to undertake postgraduate studies in the field, as its specialist research focus allows for a detailed investigation into the chosen special topic. The module provides a platform for students to work with academic staff in exploring key themes, theories and thinkers, and/or contemporary issues in Politics, International Relations and/or Development Studies. The content of the module will vary from year to year, although the module will broadly allow students to approach a key theme in the discipline (e.g. violence, justice, war) through a body of knowledge or specialist literature (e.g. Hannah Arendt, John Rawls, Carl Schmitt, Michel Foucault).

Assessment: Coursework (50%), Coursework (50%)

Introducing Gender

Module Code: 4SOCL007W Level 4 Semester 2

Gender really needs no introducing – from the moment we are born we are caught up in this most pervasive scheme for ordering the world. Introducing Gender aims to outline the ways in which gender has been understood, and challenged, in sociological and feminist thought. Central to this is the hierarchical division of men and women, and the sites and sources of this gendered power in society.

Assessment: Coursework (30%), Essay (70%)

The Sociology of Religion

Module Code: 5SOCL004W Level 5 Semester 2

Location: Regent UK Credit Value: 20 Equivalent Credit Value: US Credits 4 /

ECTS credits 10*

Early sociologists' view about the erosion of religion in modern societies have been challenged by those who argue that the twenty-first century is experiencing a process of 'desecularization' or religious revivalism. This module introduces students to the theories and methods offered by classical and contemporary sociologists to help equip them critically to examine the definitions, social origins, and historical and contemporary significance of religion at the individual, institutional and societal level.

Making Bodies: Gender, Culture, Science

Module Code: 6SOCL004W Level 6 Semester 2

Location: Regent UK Credit Value: 20 Equivalent Credit Value: US Credits 4 /

ECTS credits 10*

As human beings our experience of the world is fundamentally embodied – lived in, through and as bodies. This module explores how those bodies are 'made' culturally, and how some become more socially powerful than others. In particular it problematizes dominant scientific/medical discourses, and examines the centrality of gender, race, class and sexuality in debates about the body and identity. Sociological, feminist and queer theories of embodiment are discussed via a range of topics such as medicalization, reproduction, body modification, health, drag, transgender, disability and obesity

Consuming Race

Module Code: 6SOCL009W Level 6 Semester 2

Location: Regent UK Credit Value: 20 Equivalent Credit Value: US Credits 4 /

ECTS credits 10*

This module explores how the meanings of race are made and remade in acts of creative consumption. By consuming race we make sense of other groups and cultures, communicate our own identities, express needs and desires, and discover new ways of thinking and being. Ranging across the terrain of popular culture, and finding race in some unusual and unexpected places, this module offers fresh and innovative ways of thinking about the centrality of race to our lives.
