Admissions requirements

There are standard minimum entry requirements for all undergraduate courses. Students are advised to check the standard requirements for the most up-to-date information. For most courses a decision will be made on the basis of your application form alone. However, for some courses the selection process may include an interview to demonstrate your strengths in addition to any formal entry requirements. More information can be found here: <https://www.westminster.ac.uk/study/undergraduate/how-to-apply>

Recognition of Prior Learning

Applicants with prior certificated or experiential learning at the same level of the qualification for which they wish to apply are advised to visit the following page for further information:

Aims of the programme

The aim of the course is to help you to achieve your aspirations by providing an innovative and contemporary foundation in marketing theory and practise, embedded in a wider context of business management principles.

Key academic knowledge across a broad view of marketing and business disciplines will equip you with the skills, knowledge and expertise to move confidently and flexibly into a wider world of marketing (and business) or to pursue postgraduate study. This degree will give students an excellent range of knowledge and skills preparing them for a variety of careers within fields such as Retail Management, Brand Management or Market Research.

You will develop your self-confidence and ability to take responsibility for your own personal development and career aspirations in Marketing and Business. The course embeds both employability and sustainability to prepare you for the uncertainties, but also rewards, of working in a rapidly evolving and changing marketing and business environment.

You will have the opportunity to capstone your programme with a final major project where you will be able to research a specific area of marketing or business, further enhancing your research and critical analysis skills.

The course also aims to develop an enquiring, critical and reflective approach to ideas and issues, enabling successful graduates to contribute proactively to:

- the world of marketing, business and management;
- to public or 'third' sector organisations;
- to the main business-related professions within a marketing context, but also to broader disciplines such as consultancy or finance;
- to self-employment; entrepreneurial development and to the wider society within which businesses operate.

Equality and Diversity

The discipline of Marketing intrinsically encapsulates diversity in all forms, such as age, gender, language, ethnicity, income, ethnicity, religion and so on. For example, diversity in advertising allows consumers to see themselves within campaigns. In the development of new course curriculum design, Equality, Diversity, and Inclusion (EDI) has been embedded in multiple ways:

- There is a conscious and deliberate inclusion of staff from diverse cultural and national backgrounds. These academics have different expertise areas and have been actively involved in the production of new module materials. All staff in the School of Management and Marketing have been inducted into, and engaged in, several EDI related briefings. These briefings enabled the staff members to increase awareness and improve competencies in areas such as Identity, Giving Voice, Compassionate Pedagogy as well as the hugely important concept of 'unconscious bias'. It is recognised that as academic staff develop in these areas their contribution towards the EDI agenda will continue to be enhanced.
- Different religious ceremonies have been taken into consideration when setting deadlines.
- It is recognised on the course that the requirement for face-to-face workshops and work-based learning may restrict access for some students (such as those with caring responsibilities). The course offers reasonable adjustments, wherever necessary, based on individual needs.
- There is a conscious and progressive attempt to incorporate decolonised literature within the curriculum. This incorporates giving space and voice to a diversity of perspectives.

In line with QAA guidance and the University's commitment to equality and diversity, an inclusivity strategy facilitates an environment for learning that anticipates the varied requirements of learners and aims to ensure that all students have equal access to educational opportunities.

Practically this encompasses three principles:

- i. to aim towards an accessible curriculum for all;
- ii. to reflect multi-faceted communities and perspectives in learning materials and assessments; and
- iii. to equip students with the skills to work in a changing and diverse world.

This includes enabling access for people who have differing individual requirements as well as eliminating arbitrary and unnecessary barriers to learning. In addition, learning opportunities are designed to be inclusive (including the ability for students to choose their preferred format), enhanced by reasonable individual adjustments wherever necessary.

Employment and further study opportunities

University of Westminster graduates will be able to demonstrate the following five Graduate Attributes:

- Critical and creative thinkers
- Literate and effective communicator
- Entrepreneurial
- Global in outlook and engaged in communities
- Social, ethically and environmentally aware

University of Westminster courses capitalise on the benefits that London as a global city and as a major creative, intellectual and technology hub has to offer for the learning environment and experience of our students.

University of Westminster courses capitalise on the benefits that London as a global city and as a major creative, intellectual and technology hub has to offer for the learning environment and experience of our students.

The BA Marketing Management course aims to create work ready graduates who meet the needs of industry, preparing students for a career in a broad range of marketing disciplines. The course combines marketing strategy, marketing communications, data and analytics, market research; all of these elements driven by industry-need for creative marketers.

Work experience is a very useful way of gaining relevant, professional experience and knowledge of digital marketing and can greatly improve your employability. As part of the University of Westminster's Employability Strategy the course offers core modules incorporating work-based learning and optional year-long placements.

Work-based learning is embedded in the course. At level 4 in Employment and Academic Skills students are supported in finding work-based learning opportunities in work, volunteering or team challenges. Then at level 5 they take the Careers and Enterprise module in which their work-based learning is assessed.

At level 5 students have the opportunity to take an optional 60-credit semester-long placement module for professional experience or international experience.

Students can also choose to undertake a year-long option, more of which below.

Professional Placement Year

The Westminster Business School encourages students to take a placement year in industry. During the year you will identify skills' goals to work towards achieving whilst on placement; carry out research to develop awareness of the business sector you are working in, using a range of data sources; and, familiarise yourself with a range of employer branding techniques in recruitment and analyse contemporary selection techniques.

International Experience Year

Students can choose to undertake an international experience year as part of their degree at one of our partner overseas institutions. You will study and reside in the country of a host institution during the course of the year. The content of your study is agreed through a Learning Agreement between you, the home institution and the Westminster Business School.

What will you be expected to achieve?

Learning outcomes are statements on what successful students have achieved as the result of learning. These are threshold statements of achievement the learning outcomes broadly fall into four categories:

- The overall knowledge and understanding you will gain from your course (KU)
- Graduate attributes are characteristics that you will have developed during the duration of your course (GA)
- Professional and personal practice learning outcomes are specific skills that you will be expected to have gained on successful completion of the course (PPP)
- Key transferable skills that you will be expected to have gained on successful completion of the course. (KTS)

Level 4 course learning outcomes: upon completion of Level 4 you will be able to:

- L4.1 Operate in a range of varied but predictable contexts that require the use of a specified range of business/marketing techniques and information sources. (PPP) (PPP)

- L6.9 Recognize the potential impact of economic, social and cultural differences when working within diverse communities, both locally and internationally. (KTS) (KTS)

How will you learn?

Learning methods

This vocational course has a strong focus on your future career and the curriculum is very much applied to the industry context. Your learning activities and assessments are designed to provide real world learning opportunities to combine theory and practice. The learning and the teaching of the course takes place through lectures, seminars, workshops and tutorials. Due to the nature of the course, digital media are used to facilitate a blended approach with platforms including the online learning environment, course website and course social media. The course has its own media channels for which you will create content both individually and collaboratively (social media ads, landing pages on websites, apps, blogs and user experience designs) with a view to reach and engage audiences as part of your learning and assessment. The performance of these channels will be measured and managed through web analytics.

The course team works closely with industry partners and work-related tasks and 'as live' briefs help simulate the working environment. Work-based learning and other forms of experiential and problem-based learning forms an important strand in the three or four years of the course to help engender employability into the curriculum. The blended approach also facilitates innovative teaching methods such as the flipped classroom (students access pre-recorded lectures and the face-to-face or online seminar time is spent working on the aspects that students find problematic) which encourages active learning.

Teaching methods

The course is designed to offer a number of different learning and teaching approaches. For example, in your first year, in Employment and Academic Skills you will develop key skills in academic writing and developing your CV; in Digital Marketing Essentials you will develop creative and innovative digital solutions to a real-world business problem. In other modules you will develop a range of business and international marketing skills including data analytics, digital marketing landscapes and marketing communications.

The aims of the course are achieved as you learn through the levels of the course.

In your first year (Level 4). Developing a rigorous approach to the acquisition of a broad knowledge base of Marketing; employing a range of specialist skills; evaluating information, using it to plan and develop investigative strategies and to determine solutions to a variety of unpredictable problems; and operate in a range of varied and specific contexts, taking responsibility for the nature and quality of outputs.

In your second year (Level 5). Generating ideas through analysis of concepts and at an abstract level with a command of specialist skills and the formulation of responses to well-defined and abstract problems; analysing and evaluating information; exercising significant judgement across a broad range of functions of Marketing; and accepting responsibility for determining and achieving personal or group outcomes.

In your final year (Level 6). Critically reviewing, consolidating and extending a systematic and coherent body of knowledge, utilising specialised skills across Marketing; critically evaluating concepts and evidence from a range of sources; transferring and applying diagnostic and creative skills and exercising significant judgement in a range of situations; and accepting responsibility for determining and achieving personal outcomes.

The modules in which course aims are particularly emphasised are listed by level below:

- Develop your academic knowledge and critical understanding (Fundamentals of Marketing at Level 4; Consumer Behaviour for Marketers at level 5 and your Final Major Project at Level 6);

- Providing you with specialist and transferable skills (Marketing Research and Data Analysis at Level 4; Data Analytics at Level 5; Marketing Planning and Strategy at Level 6; but also through the many specialist skills modules available as options);
- Developing your employability and enterprise skills (Employment and Academic Skills at Level 4; Careers and Enterprise (Preparation for Internship/Enterprise Project) at Level 5 which is designed to include work-based learning; and the optional placement year);
- Building your self-confidence (through group work and reflective practise);
- Preparing you for diverse and multi-cultural contexts, raising awareness of sustainability (at Level 6 with Sustainability Marketing) and social justice issues (through group work and inclusive learning, teaching and assessment);
- Enabling you to develop analytical and research skills (Marketing Research and Data Analysis at level 4; Data Analytics at level 5; and your Final Major Project at level 6);
- and, to develop critical and creative approaches to problems (Fundamentals of Marketing at Level 4; Consumer Behaviour for Marketers at Level 5; and Marketing Planning and Strategy Level 6).

The university's Virtual Learning Environment (Blackboard) contains learning materials to complement and enrich face to face contact lectures, seminars and workshops. You will be referred to articles, cases, quizzes and other activities on Blackboard in advance of, and following taught sessions, to help structure and direct your independent study time, undertake preparatory work for seminars and prepare for assessments. Often your modules will have a blend of online and face-to-face activities.

The university has invested extensively in Panopto lecture capture technology to enable lectures to be recorded and uploaded to Blackboard. This aids your learning as it allows you to access lectures when you need them and to refer back to them in preparing for assessments. You will also have the opportunity to take part in online discussions and use the Collaborate communication platform to work virtually in groups, reflecting industry practise in digital marketing.

The approach to teaching and learning on your course also embraces the practise of reflection to the benefit of your learning, development and confidence. With the support of your academic personal tutor you will be encouraged to reflect on and further develop your knowledge, skills and professional behaviours drawing on the totality of the experiences you have encountered as a student on the course.

The School of Management and Marketing has a long-standing commitment to investing resources in state-of-the-art facilities, often replicating industry practice. An example of this is the innovative teaching space Switch-23 that provides a collaborative digital marketing space where students can develop and present their emerging ideas for campaigns, websites and apps with the same Adobe Creative Cloud applications used in the agency environment including Adobe XD to prototype all aspects of the user experience.

Furthermore, the course embeds resources from our Professional bodies in modules where appropriate and also invites guest speakers from these bodies to inform students of the benefits of membership in their future careers.

Equality, Diversity and Inclusion

From the curriculum perspective there is an exploration of themes of EDI and cultural relativity at each level of course teaching. For example:

At Level 4, 'Employment and Academic Skills' utilises a case study for the second assessment which is underpinned by issues related to Equality, Diversity and Inclusivity.

At Level 5, 'Consumer Behaviour for Marketers' includes international case studies, all discussed with a focus of Giving Voice to students' of diverse backgrounds.

At Level 6, the module 'Marketing Planning and Strategy' lends itself to embrace issues related to diversity. The module examines contemporary international communications and planning issues. In seminars, international case studies are discussed. The focus here is very much to Give Voice to students' diverse backgrounds.

Staff have been trained in the use of 'gender-neutral' pronouns as a way of illustrating allyship towards those from the non-binary as well the LGBTQ+ communities generally. This training allows staff to be more aware and sensitive to students who may be experiencing challenges around gender identity.

Assessment methods

The course team takes an ‘assessment as learning’ approach and has an inclusive learning, teaching and assessment strategy to provide culturally-inclusive learning materials, varied, innovative teaching methods and providing flexible pathways to meet learning outcomes. The university is committed to its Authentic Assessment policy, and students are encouraged to work in an inclusive and engaged manner, recognising that they are developing a rich range of understandings, skills, values and attributes to take into their professional lives. In this a variety of assessments are designed to support you in demonstrating your achievement of module learning outcomes. There is an emphasis on industry-focused, ‘real world’ assessments such as reports, portfolios, presentations and plans, though meeting professional body requirements may mean that there are some exams. Formative assessments and specific and timely feedback are an intrinsic part of the assessment process. Often a review of work in progress, this is a valuable learning opportunity and helps you improve your work and grade. You will be offered a range of formative feedback opportunities throughout each module to help prepare you for your assessments. In some cases you will critically reflect on your experiences in order to understand what you have learned and apply it in your career and other aspects of life. The assessments for these modules provide opportunities for you to demonstrate the achievement of the learning outcomes through undertaking work-based and other experiential learning activities in order to distil the learning and to help plan for your future personal and professional development.

At each level you will be assessed on academic knowledge, practical application and on your ability to re-contextualise knowledge, relating theory to practice and developing your own theory about practice. Often assessed tasks will draw on real-world digital marketing problems such as consultancy exercises and responding to creative briefs. Other assessments may require you to reflect on work-based and other forms of experiential learning.

As you move through the levels of the course the scope and depth of assessment builds, allowing you to incrementally gain confidence and improve your knowledge, skills and understanding. In particular, assessments are progressively designed to facilitate and develop independent critical thinking skills and your ability to analyse and critically evaluate theories, concepts and ideas. In the final year of the course assessment methods are likely to test your ability to synthesise your ideas and take a more holistic view of the discipline.

Course Structure

This section shows the core and option modules available as part of the course and their credit value. Full-time Undergraduate students study 120 credits per year. Course structures can be subject to change each academic year following feedback from a variety of sources.

Modules are described as:

- Core modules are compulsory and must be undertaken by all students on the course.
- Option modules give you a choice of modules and are normally related to your subject area.
- Electives: are modules from across the either the whole University or your College. Such modules allow you to broaden your academic experience. For example, where electives are indicated you may choose to commence the study of a foreign language alongside your course modules (and take this through to the final year), thereby adding further value to your degree.
- Additional information may also be included above each level for example where you must choose one of two specific modules.

Course management

The course is managed through a Course Leader, Level Leaders and Module Leaders. All members of the team have office hours when you can arrange to meet them. Course Representatives are elected in the first few weeks. This is a really valuable role and as a rep you would have regular formal meetings with the course team and less formally throughout the course in reflecting the student voice. This helps us work together to communicate and respond to any issues as they arise, to provide a strong course community.

Academic regulations

The current Handbook of Academic Regulations is available at westminster.ac.uk/academic-regulations.

Course specific regulations apply to some courses.

Academic Support

Upon arrival, an induction programme will introduce you to the staff responsible for the course, the campus on which you will be studying, the Library and IT facilities, additional support available and to your Campus Registry. You will be provided with the Course Handbook, which provides detailed information about the course. Each course has a course leader or Director of Studies. All students enrolled on a full-time course and part time students registered for more than 60 credits a year have a personal tutor, who provides advice and guidance on academic matters. The University uses a Virtual Learning Environment called Blackboard where students access their course materials, and can communicate and collaborate with staff and other students. Further information on Blackboard can be found at <https://www.westminster.ac.uk/current-students/studies/your-student-journey/when-you-arrive/blackboard>

The Academic Learning Development Centre supports students in developing the skills required for higher education. As well as online resources in Blackboard, students have the opportunity to attend Study Skills workshops and one to one appointments. Further information on the Academic Learning Development Centre can be found at westminster.ac.uk/academic-learning-development.

Learning support includes four libraries, each holding a collection of resources related to the subjects taught at that site. Students can search the entire library collection online through the Library Search service to find and reserve printed books, and access electronic resources (databases, e-journals, e-books). Students can choose to study in the libraries, which have areas for silent and group study, desktop computers, laptops for loan, photocopying and printing services. They can also choose from several computer rooms at each campus where desktop computers are available with the general and specialist software that supports the courses taught in their College. Students can also securely connect their own laptops and mobile devices to the University wireless network.

Support Services

The University of Westminster Student and Academic Services department provide advice and guidance on accommodation, financial and legal matters, personal counselling, health and disability issues, careers, specialist advice for international students and the chaplaincy providing multi-faith guidance. Further information on the advice available to students can be found at <https://www.westminster.ac.uk/student-advice>

The University of Westminster Students' Union also provides a range of facilities to support students during their time at the University. Further information on UWSU can be found at <https://www.westminster.ac.uk/students-union>

How do we ensure the quality of our courses and continuous improvement?

The course was initially approved by a University Validation Panel. University Panels normally include internal peers from the University, academic(s) from another university, a representative from industry and a Student Advisor.

The course is also monitored each year by the College to ensure it is running effectively and that issues which might affect the student experience have been appropriately addressed. Staff will consider evidence about the course, including the evidence of student surveys, student progression and achievement and reports from external examiners, in order to evaluate the effectiveness of the course and make changes where necessary.

A Course revalidation takes place periodically to ensure that the curriculum is up-to-date and that the skills gained on the course continue to be relevant to employers. Students meet with revalidation panels to provide feedback on their experiences. Student feedback from previous years is also part of the evidence used to assess how the course has been running.

How do we act on student feedback?

Student feedback is important to the University and student views are taken seriously. Student feedback is gathered in a variety of ways.

- Through student engagement activities at Course/Module level, students have the opportunity to express their voice in the running of their course. Course representatives are elected to expressly represent the views of their peers. The University and the Students' Union work together to provide a full induction to the role of the course representatives.
- There are also School Representatives appointed jointly by the University and the Students' Union who meet with senior School staff to discuss wider issues affecting student experience across the School. Student representatives are also represented on key College and University committees.;
- All students are invited to complete a questionnaire before the end of each module. The feedback from this will inform the module leader on the effectiveness of the module and highlight areas that could be enhanced.
- Final year Undergraduate students will be asked to complete the National Student Survey which helps to inform the national university league tables.

This programme specification provides a concise summary of the main features of the course and the learning outcomes that a student might reasonably be expected to achieve and demonstrate, if they take full advantage of the learning opportunities that are provided. This specification is supplemented by the Course Handbook, Module proforma and Module Handbooks provided to students. Copyright in this document belongs to the University of Westminster.
